HINGKORS. JUNE 5TH, 1985.

WEER Admiral Chown recently threv the Yokohama community into a fever of excitement by beating to quarters on the Vladimir Monomach as the Agamemnon steamed into harbour, considerable stress was laid on the insult thus offered to the neutrality of a Japanese port. In reference to this point Admiral Crown was said to have expressed himself afterwards to the effect that he would not be inclined to pay much attention to the neutrality of any port unless that neutrality could be enforced. Whether the Bussian Admiral did actually so express himself does not appear to be clearly established, but there can be no doubt that the doctrine attributed to him is one that deserves the severest condemnation. In actual war it may not always be practically possible for the combatante voluntarily to observenice distinctions as to the limits within which the enemy may beattacked, but a wilful disgarded of the neutrality of afriendly power would be a grare offence. Still, if neutral powers wish their neutrality to be strictly respected they must be prepared to enforce it; otherwise probably little regard would be paid to their wishes. Japan, however, is actually in a position sufficiently strong to command a due measure of respect on this point, for in the event of war between England and Russia ber friendship would be of substantial value, and neither of the belligerents would willingly see that friendship estranged from themselves and transferred to the other. If Admiral Crown entertained any idea of deliberately violating the neutrality of a Japanese port he was exceedingly foolish, Majesty, in reply to the Governor-General. looking at the matter simply from a self-interested point of view. He was, of course, equal ly wrong on gthical grounds. A paragraph to a Shangnai paper shows, however, how little regard is paid to sthical considerations when national interests are conterned. The Shang. hai Mercury attributes to Admiral Downth the intention, should war occur, of committing an act which would constitute a much graver offence against the neutrality of China than Admiral; Czown's action at Yokoof it in a spirit of commendation. Under the heading " In readiness for the prize " our contemporary saye :-- "The question has been frequently asked of late in Shanghai why Vice-Admiral DownLL persists in keeping one of his small gunboats in harbour, whilst on the other hand he seems to be stay drought and pestilence. anxious to concentrate all vessels available on points of strategical value. The answer has been whispered to us, and we think it to be not without foundation. It is known that there are two Russian tos ships in Hankow. In the event of war between Russin and England the Linust would at once be despatched to Hankow to hoist the Union Jack at the peak of the Russia Tharitaka, which steamers would a valuable prize, considering that they Cardiganshire, from Hamburg, Antwerp, and are very fast vessels." There can be London, sailed from Singapore for this per yesno possible foundation for the statement here made. That a man-of-war should show fight in a neutral port when she by the French is another indication that the of attack is a thing which may admit of some excuse on the score of hot-headedness or natural excitement, but to deliberstely go into a noutral port for the purpose deen dock to day, and the British barque Chanof solving merchant vessels under an enemy's flag would constitute a grave international outrage which could admit of no excuse or palliation. THE LOVE SONG OF THE TOM-TIT. On a tree by a river a little tom-tit Sang "Willow, titwillow, titwillow !" And I said to him, " Dioky-bird, why do you sit Singing 'Willow, titwillow; litwillow?'

Is it a weakness of intellect, birdie?" I cried "Or a rather tough worm in your little inside?" With a blake of his poor little head he replied, "Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow!" He slappedat his chest as he sat on that bough

Singing " Willow, titwillow, titwillow !" And a cold perspiration bespangled his brow, Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow ! He sobbodand he sighed and a gargle he gave, Then he threw himself Into the billowy wave.

And an echo arose from the suicide's grave ---"Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow!" Now I feel as sure as I'm sure that my name Isn't willow, titwillow, titwillow!

That 'twasblighted affection that made him erclaim, "Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow !" And if you remain callous and obdurate, I Shall perish as he did and you will know why Though Iprobably shall not exclaim as I die. "Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow !"
